Women short-oval track racers

The limited number of tracks in a small country like the UK, combined with vigorous “contact” tactics, means that far fewer woman race ovals in the UK than in North America, where people have access to many more dirt and tarmac ovals. This collection excludes large track (Daytona and NASCAR), and Indy car racing.

But you’ll enjoy having your eyes opened to the little-known participation of women in this tough area of motor sport. Over 250 slides!

If you know any more women racers on short tracks, let me know.

First, some of the women in the UK who take part in the roughest motor sport: banger racing, the only form where drivers, builders, and spectators all expect the car to be destroyed in full-contact crash tactics.

After that, the A-Z slide show will include British stock cars, and other oval track cars from the UK, Europe, Australia, and North America.
