Women in Motocross racing

6W2

GNCC@Hill

There are hundreds and hundreds of women competing in Motocross sports in countries across the world ---- --- and we didn't know.

Here are 400-plus, compiled before "closing" the apparently endless list of women who race dirt bikes off-road. In Continental Europe and North America, motocross seems to be more popular along women than in the UK. Can this be true?

You won't remember or recognize them all --- but if you scroll through, you may be surprised by an updated perspective on women in motor sport ---- they are racing everywhere ☺
At the end: some women who race snowmobiles!

Jeff Spencer, former Olympic cyclist involved in training motocrossers:

"Motocross requires the highest level of combined fitness of any sport on the face of the earth, bar none. I've spent five Tours de France with Lance Armstrong, and Lance is no slouch. But Lance's overall fitness doesn't even compare to the overall fitness of a motocross racer."

Let’s see them, in alphabetical order --- 513 slides follow!

JENIFER MORGAN

NOTHING OVERLY INTIMIDATING

In the footsteps of Patsy Quick, Jenifer Morgan will be witnessing her very first Dakar in January 2011. The Welsh rider who started riding bikes when she was only 13 first started hearing about the Dakar when Margaret Thatcher's son lost himself during the event. At 41 years of age, Jenny knows what to expect but doesn't worry too much about the dunes of Chile and the long stages that she have to finish in the dark. Her biggest concern is being fit and prepared at the start in Buenos might Aires after breaking several bones in her foot at the end of September.

"I spoke a lot with Patsy Quick about the Dakar. Her achievement is inspiring, although she painted out the Dakar as something extremely difficult. The appeal of South America is very strong. I have no illusion; I know that I'll b
